

Chiaccona

...the solos are well played, with just the right amount of rhythmic freedom and a very good tone, and a very attractive degree of dynamic variation, and a general musical feeling. Axel Wolf's playing is exemplary in the range of sounds he produces from his chitarrone ; and his performance of the "battaglia" is wonderfully spirited, absolutely as the composer must have intended, evoking moments of pathos on the battlefield, and the distant echoing of trumpets, as well as roaring cannonades ... a very enjoyable recording.

Lute News

The Lute Society Magazine, April 2001